The only way I know to describe this woman is an angel placed on earth. She has a spirit and an aura about her that resembles peace and serenity.

She is a very accomplished female in a so called "man's world" so I automatically thought she was a hard nosed, cold, woman that was all professional. Boy was I wrong. I went to meet her at her office and the person I meet was a warm, kind hearted, genuine person with impeccable taste for fashion. She had a glow about her that resembled the beauty of a rainbow after a storm.

Then, as I began to get to know I knew I was dealing with a woman that truly cared about others, was thoughtful and caring. I have always had the greatest respect for her and recent events have only confirmed how charitable and genuine she is.

I recently was in a very desperate situation. I turned to various community resources with no prevail. I went to this generous woman with a personal cry for help. She welcomed me with open arms, made me feel a peace within myself that I had not felt in months, and gave me hope.

She never raised her voice; never questioned the past. She fed me challenges and promised to be there to help. To this day I still think what she asked me to do for myself was minimal compared to the help she gave me. The words of encouragement she gave are ones that stay close to my heart, and her reassuring nature is one that I will never forget. She is still giving me words of encouragement through emails while I keep her updated on my progress and success.

She has had numerous articles written about her success in the business world but I would like her to know that she is also very successful in making a difference in every woman's life that comes in contact with her. There is not a day that goes by that she does not do something above and beyond.

The peace and tranquility she exudes in a two minute conversation has a calming affect that can not be put into words. There is only one way to describe her and that is: One of God's angels fulfilling his charitable and supportive measures in helping others. She is an inspiration to all and a true role model to women everywhere.
